

Liberal Studies

A liberal studies major allows students who desire to pursue coursework in three different disciplines to integrate their interests into a major that allows both depth and breadth. The key element is the integration of the diverse disciplines into a unified and coherent understanding. This integration is demonstrated by the completion of a capstone Interdisciplinary Project. The University's core curriculum/general education requirements are the foundation upon which the degree is based.

PROGRAM INFORMATION

Research opportunities

The capstone project course, HUM 4063, requires integration of study in the three main disciplinary areas. Students conduct research on a topic of their choice which is evaluated by a committee of faculty.

Curriculum

Beyond the core requirements which provide a foundation for liberal education, the bachelor of arts in liberal studies requires specific courses directed at broad social and cultural ideas, particularly the ethical dimension of the human person in community. This is coupled with a minimum of 12 credit hours of coursework in each of three distinct disciplines. The capstone project serves to bring the major to completion.
